

ASCE STUDENT DAYS 2011

Folsom, CA September 9-11, 2011

By Larry J. Smith, P.E. – Chairman ASCE Construction Institute

The ASCE Construction Institute Chapters of the Sacramento and San Francisco Sections are pleased to announce Student Days 2011. This unique weekend will encompass: networking, young professional development, a job fair, professional speakers, scholarship presentations, and a site tour of the Folsom Dam Auxiliary Spillway Control Structure in Folsom, California. A minor fee of $25.00 is associated with this event to cover basics, however all food, hotels, and workshops are included. In addition, a stipend is available to offset students cost in travel.

The Construction Institute Chapters will be awarding Construction Scholarships for the 2011/2012 academic year. Up to 6 scholarship awards ranging between $1,000 and $2,000 each will be made. The number and value of the awards are at the discretion of the Awards Committee.

Applications for Student Days and Scholarships can be found on the ASCE CI website located at:

http://www.asce-sacto.org/Institutes/CI/Student_Days.htm

Please Contact our Student Days Directors (Heather or Shauna) for more information.

Student Day SPONSORSHIP OPPORTUNITIES

Dear Construction Industry Leader:

ASCE's Construction Institute (CI) invites you to take part in an exclusive high-visibility opportunity for your company to connect with 60 top students selected from area universities – all in one location. Meet tomorrow's leaders today and have an exclusive opportunity to introduce your company to the brightest and best young people in northern California.

Tap into the students' expansive network reaching even beyond the Northern California area to spread the word about your company's place in the construction industry. Capture their attention and create a memorable impact through creative sponsorship opportunities. Maintain that connection all year, through your complimentary corporate membership with CI as we nurture and support these students and students around the country through our younger member initiative focused on fostering and developing the next era of construction industry leaders and influencers. CI is the forum for more than 19,000 members representing the construction industry where they can come together with the 140,000 ASCE members representing all facets of civil engineering.

The Sacramento Student Days will be a three-day program packed with technical sessions, career preparation seminars, and project site tours designed to provide students with an exciting out-of-the-classroom introduction to real world civil engineering. Become a key player in bringing the theories and lectures to life by introducing your specialty to this highly motivated audience. Consider whether one of the sponsorship opportunities below will provide you with the promotional value you desire.

Corporate Spotlight ($1,000) – Showcase your company's dedication to the future of the industry and development of its leaders. Have maximum exposure in name and in person for your commitment to tomorrow's construction professionals – including table top display, speaking opportunities during breakfast/lunch, and complimentary tickets to the Construction Institute awards dinner Friday evening.

Taking it on the Road ($500) – Sponsors will join the students join on the ride to/from the project tour, plus table top space in the conference hall.

Talent Scout ($250) – Get a sneak peek at today's top students – tomorrow's promising leaders. Remember word-of-mouth is often the best advertising and we'll give you table-top space in the conference hall, face time with the students.

Nourishing Body and Mind ($200) – study session nourishment sponsor – encourage student study time even away from the campus by sponsoring a healthy study session treat.

CI STUDENT DAYS
September 9-11 2011
SACRAMENTO, CA

In 2008 ASCE Construction Institute began an initiative to look to the future of our profession. Our goal is to capture the fresh ideas and talents of younger members by bringing them together with industry as their careers are beginning.

Our technical committees and Corporate Partners have joined in strong support of this enterprise as we work in partnership to develop new and promote future leaders. My purpose for contacting you is to invite your participation in our job fair and sponsorship for "Student Days" September 9 through September 11, 2011 in Folsom, CA. We anticipate attendance of some 60 students from major Northern California and Nevada colleges and universities.

This will be an exciting opportunity for students to connect with construction industry leaders and for the industry to get a first look at the skills and talents of upcoming graduates. The three-day conference will feature technical sessions, major construction project site tour, a job fair, plenty of networking opportunities and more. Funding for student registration, meals, and housing will be provided by the Construction Institute and Corporate Sponsors.

For your convenience attached please find a "Registration Form for Sponsorship Table at Job Fair." The link to the ASCE Construction Institute Website contains the Program, Student Days Registration Forms and Scholarship Applications.

Thank you for your time. I hope this message clarifies our goals, our needs, and our purpose for contacting you.
